Mack Motzko was a 2020 Cathedral grad who was tragically killed in a car crash the summer of 2021. This left a huge hole in the lives of those who knew and loved him. Mack was passionate about his sports and activities and was a great athlete. It didn't stop there. Mack treated all he encountered with respect and kindness. He was a role model and leader in all that he did. He cared about his teammates as people, more than he cared about their abilities. He made sure to make others feel included, cared about and that they were a part of something important. If you met Mack, you had a friend for life; someone who genuinely cared about you. One classmate described him by saying, “He made everybody feel like a somebody”. Now, more than ever, we need more “Macks” in the world.

Even if you didn't know Mack personally, please write a few paragraphs about what you think it means “to live like Mack”. Share examples, even simple ways, how you have done this and how you aspire to do this in your life.
